Senior Manager in Marketing and Sales

SUMMARY

An engineer with 20 years of experience in leadership roles across marketing, project management, and business development. Although not a traditional software engineer, they possess strong managerial skills overseeing technical teams, including web developers and SMM specialists, which could transfer effectively to tech-focused projects. Extensive experience in developing marketing strategies and conducting research, paired with a proven track record in building strategic partnerships, can contribute uniquely to a software engineering environment. Education background and linguistic proficiency were not aligned with software engineering, therefore omitted. Specific technical skills in software development were not provided, so could not be highlighted.
